Summer is a much needed reprieve for both teachers and students. It allows everyone time to relax and unwind from a busy school year. The two month break that most school systems have can also be problematic for student learning. It seems that by the second month of break students start getting antsy and parents scramble to find activities to keep the kids under control for the last few months ...

The Great Piggy Bank Adventure. Although it's not the most important thing in life, money does play an integral part in an individual's life. While most children learn the names and values of money during their early academic years at school, it's often at home where they learn the value of saving and investing money.
